NEW BAPTIST CHURCH.

College-Avenue Structure Rapidly Nearing Completion.

The new building of the College-avenue Baptist Church will receive its finishing touches this week. It is a brick structure, with stone trimmings and slate roof, and stands on the northeast corner of College and Lincoln avenues. A little more than two years ago the church purchased this new site and soon after began the erection of the building by excavating and putting in a stone foundation. The work was discontinued until the following summer, when the contract was let for the completion of the building.

The house consists of a good-sized auditorium, together with a large Sundayschool room, containing the gallery, divided into a number of class rooms. The building is so constructed that the lecture room, which is for Sunday-school purposes, can be connected with the auditorium by the elevation of large doors, which are hung on weights. There are also pastor's ments to solicit any person to vote at any study and robing rooms, which are constudy and robing rooms, which are connected with an open baptistry that stands in the northeast corner of the auditorium. The building is elegantly frescoed, and heated by two large furnaces of the Crewson & Winter manufacture. In the basement, in addition to the furnace rooms, there is a large space for dining-room and kitchen conveniences. In the east end of the auditorium, which is back of the pulpit, is located a large Hook & Hastings bipe organ, which is properly finished and decorated to suit the other interior finishing. The entire building is carpeted with rich body Brussels, made especially for the building, giving the most complete and artistic appearance to the interior arrangement. It is expected at this time to dedicate the property Sunday, Nov. 12. When the erection of this building was begun many persons who were acquainted with the congregation predicted that they would be unable to carry it through to completion, but even the most sanguine friends of the church are pleasantly surprised by the success which has attended the work. When the few finishing touches are added the organization will have a property worth in the neighborhood of $25,-000, the bulk of which has already been Meeting of the Fee Grabbers in the Criminal Court Room-Barrett Bonds Not Prepared.

There was an indignation meeting held Monday night in the Criminal Court room by the Democratic election officers to protest against the present city government forbidding their looting of the public treasury. It will be remembered that when the canvassing board met to canvass the vote they allowed the inspectors six days' and the judges three days' time. There were a few honest men present who protested against this outrageous action, but they were hooted down. When the claims were presented to Controller Trusler he refused to countenance the robbery and the inspectors departed in great wrath. Their wrath has been accumulating since that time, and Monday night they assembled in the Criminal Court room and engaged in vituperation against Trusler for his protecnon of the city funds. There were about 125 inspectors, judges and election sheriffs present, presided over by John Van Standt. They were of unanimous opinion that Controller Trusler had no right to protect the interests of the city and prevent their looting of the treasury according to their sweet will. Resolutions expressing their sentiments in this line were adopted without a dissenting vote and a committee was appointed to employ attorneys and test the legality of the controller's opinion. The committee was composed of John Van Standt, Morris Solomon and another whose name was not learned. Counsel will be retained and the complaint filed within a few days.

BOSTON CIVIL SERVICE.

A Few Points Which the Local Administration Is Seeking. At the cabinet meeting Monday night Mayor Denny announced that he had written to Boston for information about the application of the civil-service regulations in the employment of men in the city government. He also announced that it would probably be several days before he would receive a reply to his inquiry. There are several persons in this city who are conversant with the application of the civilservice policy in Boston, having previously investigated it for their own information. They have secured statistics showing the effect of civil service in that city during the past eight years. There is a civil-service board composed of three members, with a clerk, who have charge of registrations. Applicants apply at designated periods and they register their applications with the clerk of the civil-service board. When enough have applied to meet all proper demands registration ceases. That is, when double the number required for positions to be filled have filed their applications registration ceases and no more applications are received. The applicant must furnish a certificate signed by a citizen as to his capacity for labor, industry and sobriety, and he must state under oath his name, age, residence, citizenship, number dependent upon him for support, military service, if any, past and present occupation. When men are needed the heads of department make a requisition on the commissioners or civil-service board, giving the number of laborers wanted and kind of service, and the clerk reports double the number called for, giving particulars in each case. In Boston preference is given to old soldiers and men of families. If an employe is discharged for cause he is ineligible to registration for six months, and if dis-charged for drunkenness for one year; the second charge disqualifies him except upon a special vote of the board.

If it is desired to adopt civil-service rules in the appointment of employes in Indian-apolis the Mayor could appoint three men from his heads of departments to act as commissioners, and the Mayor's cierk could act as clerk of the board. If it was desired to have the commissioners be in no wise connected with the city govern-ment in any other capacity there is little doubt the Mayor could find three citizens, whose names would be a guarantee of integrity, who would willingly serve in the capacity of civil-service commisssioners gratis. By this means the civil-service ideas could be carried out at once without waiting for amendments and reconstruction of the charter. The regulations would apply to employes of the city government here as follows: Clerks in the civil engineer's office, 1; street commissioner, 1; Board of Public Works, 1; controller, 2; Board of Health, 1; Board of Public Safety, 1 and city clerk, 1, janitors 6 and park police 6. In the engineer's office: Assistant engineers, 2; transitman, 1; draughtsmen, 2; rodmen, 2; linemen, 4, and inspectors, 10, making a total of forty-three employes affected by the adoption of civil-service rules. The provision of the Boston charter providing for the civil-service rules. charter providing for the civil-service regulations is as follows:

"To call together the heads of departments, except of assessment and collection, for consultation and advice upon the affairs of the city at least once a month, and to call on the heads of all departments for reports from the same, which it shall be their duty to prepare and submit in writing. Records shall be kept of such meetings above provided for, and rules and regulations shall be adopted thereat for the administration of the affairs of the city departments, not inconsistent with any law or ordinance, which regulations shall prescribe a common and systematic method of ascertaining the comparative fitness of applicants for office, position and promotion, and of selecting, appointing and promoting those found to be best fitted, except in the Department of Public Safety, without regard to political opinion or serv-

The police and fire departments come under different provisions. As to these departments the charter provides: "The Commissioners of Public Safety may fix the number of members of said fire and police departments, and the number of appointees for other purposes. They shall also have power to promulgate rules and regulations for the appointment of members of such forces, and for their government, provided that said members shall be as nearly as possible equally divided politically, and no member thereof shall be dismissed except for cause as hereinbefore provided. They may be removed for any cause other than politics, and the written reason for such removal shall be entered upon the records of such board.

"It shall be unlawful for a commissioner of public safety, or any person appointed by them, or their predecessors, or holding any position in said fire or police departany yoter, or in any manner attempt to influence any elector at such election, or to be a delegate to any political convention, or to solicit for any candidate or delegate to such convention, or to be a member of any political committee.' The statistics gathered from the application of the regulations in Boston show a much higher degree of efficiency in the em-ployes. A member of the Board of Public Works of this city said that the city did not get more than one-fourth the amount of work from their employes that the contractors obtained from the men employed by them. This was caused by the fact that the city employes were almost altogether men advanced in years, who were employed, not because of their ability to perform the work required of them, but because their friends had a "pull."

The statistics from Boston show the average age in all departments in that city to be thirty-six years, thus securing to the city men in the prime of life and demonstrating that such men were available, this being due to the permanence of the employment. Of over nine hundred persons appointed but twenty-nine had attended college, showing that the examination was not on a lofty plane and of a visionary character. Two-thirds of the officers in Massachusetts and cities within that State are thus chosen. After eight years under these civil-service regulations there were less discharges in 1893 than in any preced-ing, year, and of the total number of dis-charges, but two-thirds of 1 per cent. were had been killed. BOOKS IN BAD SHAPE.

Somewhat Delayed. A representative of the Acme Paving Company dropped in to the controller's office yesterday afternoon and was surprised to find that bonds for an improvement post-mortem examination.

which the company had completed were not prepared. In a number of cases on the books of the office, where it was indicated that the property owners intended to pay cash instead of taking advantage of the Barrett law, the company sent notices asking the property owners to call and pay up. There was another surprise when the property owners replied, advising the company to further investigate. Then it was discovered that those property owners had signified their intention of taking advantage of the Barrett law. The books of the assessment department are in a very bad shape and it will take many months to get them in proper shape. Bonds that ought to have been completed in the middle of October are not prepared yet.

CHRYSANTHEMUM TIME.

No Diminution of the Popularity of the Queen of the Autumn.

Mr. William G. Bertermann is the secretary of the Society of Indiana Florists, and, consequently, is much interested in the great flower show of chrysanthemums which is to be held next week at Tomlinson Hall. In a talk with Mr. Bertermann, yesterday, he referred to an article which appeared recently in the Journal, copied from an Eastern paper. Mr. Bertermann said: "My attention was called to-day to an article in your paper, taken from a New York paper, stating that the chrysanthemum flowers were losing favor, and were going out of style. Whoever the informant was must have been duped by a full-fledged rose grower. It is a fact that the chrysanthemums are crowding the roses out of the market during chryanthemum time, and consequently it hurts the large rose culti-The blooming time of the now very popular chrysanthemum only extending over six weeks, we find our patrons awaiting with pleasure for their blooming. TAKEN TO HIS GRAVE.

George Rahke's Former Sweetheart Creates a Scene.

Police Matron Buchanan has a distressing case. In her charge is Lillian Russell, the young woman who came here from Louisville to attend the funeral of her former sweetheart, the late George Rahke. The girl is pretty and has an air of refinement, but is erring, and the family of the dead man did not desire her presence during their hours of mourning. She was locked up two days ago and was brought before the police judge yesterday morning. She obstinately refused to go away and was returned to the station house. The girl resides in Louisville at No. 624 West Tenth street, and her father was summoned here yesterday in the hope that he might be able to persuade her to leave the city. In company with Police Judge Stubbs, the girl's parent yesterday afternoon visited her and used every argument in behalf of reason, but she obdurately refused to con-sent to the arrangements made for her. Yesterday evening, late, she piteously appealed to the matron to take her to Crown Hill Cemetery where she might see the grave of George Rahke. The latter finally consented to the plan and the two repaired to the cemetery. For half an hour the girl sat by the side of the little mound and cried bitterly. When she returned to the cried bitterly. When she returned to the city she reiterated her determination to remain here. Her reason for so doing she says is because she desires to live where she can visit the grave of Rahke when she feels so disposed. The unfortunate creature is apparently sincere in her emotional display of grief for the dead.

CULTURE OF SUGAR BEETS.

A Syndicate That Expects to Erect a Big Factory in Indiana.

The president of the Indianapolis Board of Trade is in receipt of a communication from Mr. Henry B. Clifford, chairman of the United Sugar Syndicate, New York, in which he states that there is no longer a doubt regarding the successful manufacture of sugar from beets grown in this State. While it is not generally known, this industry has become firmly established and last year the sugar product of the United States from beets was 12,000 tons. Mr. Clifford says there is no industry that can bring greater benefit to the people of Indiana than the establishment of this new line, and the great benefits that are sure to follow can be made positive if the Board of Trade will take up the matter. The syndicate, he says, is interested in this subject for the reason that it contemplates building a large central factory for the manufacture of beet sugar in this State but it does not care to do so until assured of a steady product. This can be done by a little action. Beet culture, Mr. Clifford says, is so little known, and yet it is such an attractive subject, that he writes asking if arrangements can be made for him to deliver an address before the Board of Trade, in December next, upon the subject of "Sugar in America," illustrating it with views of the great French industry. Secretary Smith has acknowledged receipt of the communication and advised Mr. Clifford that the same will receive the consideration of the board in a few days, and that no doubt arrangements will be made for him to visit Indianapolis and deliver his address at the Board of Trade in December, or probably earlier.

FOUND IN A CAR.

He Is Without Identification Save a Collar Laundry Mark.

About 9 o'clock last night a man was found dead in an empty box car, in the Big Four yards, near the Belt, east of the city. There was no paper or article of any kind upon his person that might lead to an identification, save a laundry mark, the letter "B," on his undershirt. The car in which he was found had arrived but a few hours before from Cincinnati, and the man was discovered by one of the employes about the yard. At the time he was discovered on North Illinois street, where it remained during the night without having been identified. The coroner was notified, but did not view the remains last night, and there is, as yet, nothing to indicate the cause of death. The man was apparently between thirty-five and forty years of age, and had a sandy mustache. From the condition of the body at the time it was found it is thought that the man had crawled into the car after its arrival in the yards, and died from some un-

UNDER A NEW CHIEF

Police Force Passes to the Direction of George W. Powell.

Change Made at Roll Call-Superintendent Colbert's Retiring Speech to the Force.

At roll call last night Thomas P. Colbert delivered over to George W Powell the office of superintendent of the Indianapolis police. The room was crowded with patrolmen, sergeants and detectives, and when the new chief took the chair so long occupied by his predecessor there was a mild curiosity expressed on every face. Mayor turned his badge over to the superintend-Denny and the members of the Board of Public Safety occupied prominent seats in the room, and watched with interest the regular routine of work. After Police Captain Quigley had completed the roll, Colonel Ruckle acose and briefly announced to the men that their future chief was before them. "We believe," said Colonel Ruckle, "that he will conduct the office, with your co-operation and earnest endeavor, to the satisfaction of all."

Mr. Powell stepped forward and said: "Gentlemen of the Police Department-These are relations that are no doubt a surprise to you as well as myself, but we are in the service. I am glad to have the pleasure of knowing you, and hope to take you all by the hand very soon. At present I have no other plans than those embodied in the oath you have taken. We shall expect of you, in addition to executive ability. sobriety and loyalty to the department. You will enter your duties and I will enter mine with the full faith and confidence in each other. Superintendent Colbert has been very courteous in his treatment of me to-day, and has kindly explained many of the workings of the department. think he has a word for you.

The retiring chief arose, and there was the slightest quaver in his voice.

"Gentlemen," he began, " you all know well that I am not a speech maker, but I desire to say to you that if the department is as loyal to Mr. Powell as it has been to me in the past there will be no question of success. It may have been said by som that in the performance of my duties I was somewhat harsh at times, but to-night I persuade myself with the belief that it was for the benefit of all. I thank you kindly for the support you have loyally given me, and now, in leaving you, my sincerest desire is that you will give the same assistance to the new management that you have tendered me. Good-bye." The retiring chief's remarks were sceeted with considerable hearty applause by the men. The department was then marshaled out for the regular inspection, and the new superintendent, with the Board of Safety and Mayor Denny, retired to the private of-

TWO ESCAPES FROM DEATH.

Saloon-Keeper Schoppenhorst Almost Falls Under Car Wheels.

George Schoppenhorst, a saloon keeper at No. 224 East Washington street, was badly injured besides experiencing a narrow escape from death at the Alabama-street crossing of the Monon tracks yesterday morning. Schoppenhorst was returning from Chicago via the Monon and, desiring to leave the train near his home, attempted to alight at Alabama street. The cars were in rapid motion, and he struck the ground with terrific force, but had the presence of mind to retain his hold on the step. He was dragged several yards and then he let go his grasp. Police Sergeant Mefford was standing on the cars and saw Schoppenhorst fail. He sprang off and started back, but before he reached the prostrate man Schoppenhorst arose and attempted to walk. He was too badly hurt and fell across one of the switch tracks al most in front of an approaching engine. The sergeant saw the danger and dragged the injured man from the rails not an instant too soon. He was taken to police headquarters, where it was found that he suffered, besides other severe injuries, a fracture of the ribs. He was sent to his home, which is over his saloon.

FIRES AT HAUGHVILLE.

The Western Suburb Twice Visited by Flames Yesterday.

Haughville was twice visited by fire yesterday. At 11 o'clock yesterday morning : fire originating from a defective flue destroyed the residence of Charles Johnson, damaged that of a man named Baggs and destroyed a temporary structure occupied by an unknown man. The total loss in this instance did not exceed $800.

At 7:45 last night fire was discovered in the residence of George Pull on Grand View avenue, in Jefferson Park. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it had gained such headway by the time the department arrived upon the scene that it was impossible to check the flames and the house was destroyed. An alarm was sounded in the city and the department here sent aid, but it was of no avail. The house was a two story frame dwelling valued at $1,500. The nearest water was six blocks away.

IT WAS HARRISON'S PICTURE.

Insane Hospital Employes Discharged for Not Removing 1t.

Odan Boyer, of Columbus, Ind., and another young man from the northern part of the State, until recently, were employes at the Central Hospital for the Insane. The two were Republicans, and had in their room the picture of ex-President Harrison. The picture was discovered by some one and reported to the "office," they claim, and shortly afterward the young men were called there and asked to take down the picture. This the young men, it is claimed, refused to do, saying that in the "office" they observed the picture of Cleveland, and that as long as they occupied the room assigned to them they would keep the picture of ex-President Harrison in view. In a short time afterwards they were called into the office, paid what was due them and discharged.
